

ABSTRACT

A method of inspecting and imaging substrates with an electron beam. The method can include illuminating the substrate with a photon beam to cause photoemission of electrons. A low energy electron beam can be used to prevent or reduce positive charging of the substrate. Reflected electrons and/or emitted photoelectrons can be imaged to review or inspect the substrate.

2004-01-01